Bulletin CE2017-02 covers the following issue:

- Marijuana Worker Permit Deadline

Worker Permits Deadline Looming

Licensee employees must be entered into Metrc by end of April 2017

Beginning the first week of April 2017 the Metrc Cannabis Tracking System will be modified to allow employers to enter worker permit identification numbers into the system, replacing the current process of entering a limited portion of an individual's social security number.

It is the licensee's responsibility to ensure all its employees have a valid worker permit and that the worker permit information is entered into CTS.

Not every employee in the marijuana industry requires a marijuana worker permit. The need for a permit is licensed based – a good rule of thumb is if you're working anywhere near the marijuana plant or its products, you need a marijuana worker permit. Employees working for a licensed lab or a licensed research operation are NOT required to have a permit.

If you are in the process of applying for a Marijuana Worker Permit or need to apply for one, use the following information as a guide for the next steps you need to take in order to have your marijuana worker permit "in hand" by the April 28th deadline:

- No test taken/no application submitted – Need to apply
- Test taken/no application submitted – Need to apply
- Application submitted – Under review, wait for contact from OLCC

- Application approved/not paid – Submit fee to activate worker permit

Licensee Account Administrators

All administrators on licensee CTS accounts must have their permit identification numbers entered into the CTS by Metrc. This request must be done early enough for Metrc to complete the switchover by the end of April. Because there are more than 750 licensee administrators currently on Metrc, don't wait until the deadline to get this done. Contact Metrc at support@metrc.com to complete the switchover.

A licensee that does not have employees' Marijuana Worker Permit information is subject to a Category III violation for failure to keep required records.

The OLCC will send follow up communication when Metrc CTS is ready to accept the entry of worker permit identification numbers.
